UNDERTAKE REPAIRING OF ROADS

Commercial Association Employs Man By The Month
To Make Repairs

C. R. RUNYARD HAS CHARGE

The Antioch Commercial Association held a very important meeting last Friday evening and several matters of interest to the community were taken up. Alderman Anton J. Cermack of Chicago was present and gave a very interesting talk on the importance of good roads. He also explained that he would use his influence in securing the donation of a car load of crushed stone, for use on our village streets.

By a vote of the association Chairman Webb was instructed to hire a man by the month to look after the streets of Antioch and the roads in the surrounding territory. Mr. Webb acted at once and has employed Chas. Runyard who has already begun the work, which will be done under the direction of Road Commissioner Frank Dunn.

The Association also voted to pay $100.00 toward the "Composite ad" of Antioch and the surrounding lake resorts which will appear for a time in the Chicago Daily News.

W. R. Williams read a communication from the State Highway Commission in reply to the letter sent to the Commission by the Antioch Association a short time ago. The letter reads as follows:

W. R. Williams, Secretary
Antioch Commercial Association,
Antioch, Ill.

Dear Sir:—I beg to acknowledge receipt of your favor of the 13th instant in which you advise that a resolution has been adopted by the Antioch Commercial Association requesting the early construction of that portion of bond issue route 21 which is in the vicinity of Antioch. We have not as yet been able to make the reconnaissance survey of this route; in fact the surveys have not been made for only a small percentage of the bond issue roads, owing to the fact that weather conditions have not been favorable and also because these surveys are being made by a few of our experienced engineers.

We appreciate the importance of the road to which your letter and you may be sure it will be given consideration in our early construction program of the bond issue program. It is not likely, however, that we will get to it this season, as we expect to place under contract about 600 miles of the federal aid roads, and in addition approximately 125 miles of state aid roads which we were unable to build last year owing to war conditions; this is about all of the road work we can hope to complete this year.

Regretting that I am unable to offer you anything more definite at this time and assuring you of our appreciation of your interest and offer of cooperation in the improvement of this road, I beg to remain, Very truly yours,
S. E. BRADY,
Superintendent of Highways.

Baccalaureate Service of Graduating Class

The Baccalaureate address will be delivered at the high school on Sunday evening at 8:15. Rev. S. E. Pollock will deliver the address and Rev. Lynch and Rev. Kolkebeck have been asked to have a part in the service also. Everybody is cordially invited to be present.

Drum's Place in Music.

The drum is a relic of ancient ages. Music in its crudest form is fundamentally rhythm—later to develop into harmony. The drum, lacking pitch, lacking true musical expression, nevertheless essentially registers rhythm. It represents music in its infancy as devised by primitive peoples.

The Fool Hen.

The lad went to the henhouse to gather eggs. He returned with two eggs and said a hen was on the nest. He was told not to disturb the hen, but wait for a time and maybe he could find another egg. In half an hour he ran excitedly into the house, exclaiming: "That fool hen sat on the nest until the egg was boiling," and he held the egg up as proof.

Mrs. Margaret Wertz Dies In Chicago.

On Sunday last occurred the death of Mrs. Emeline Margaret Wertz, at the home of her daughter at 3828 N. Marshfield avenue, Chicago. The deceased was quite well known to the people of this vicinity on account of having at one time lived at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Wallace Drom, north of town. Her death was due to acute gastritis and came after an illness of only a couple of days. Mrs. Wertz is survived by five children, Clayton Wertz and Mrs. Maude Drom of this place, Arthur and Margaret Bell of Chicago and William of Union, also twelve grandchildren.

The funeral services were held Tuesday with burial in Town of Maine cemetery at Park Ridge.

Ficke Named Chairman of Review Board

The county board of review met in the annual session Monday and adopted rules of order and elected their chairman and appointed clerks.

Emil A. Ficke, chairman of the board of supervisors, was elected chairman of the board of review. New Lamb of Gurnee and H. C. Coulson of 632 Grand avenue, Waukegan, are the other two members. Richard S. Barnum was appointed clerk and Clara Keyes assistant clerk. The board then adjourned until Monday, June 9th, at 10 o'clock a. m., when the regular business of the board will be taken up.

Big Realty Deal Nets $178,000

Eighty-nine acres of land, adjoining Great Lakes, just west of the main gate, was transferred to the navy department by Thos. Byrne, of Lake Forest, leading Chicago contractor, for $178,000, netting to Byrne what is believed to be the biggest "clean" profit on a parcel of land in Lake county for a long time.

It is declared Byrne purchased this property several years ago for $50,000. This leaves a net profit of $128,000. He got the property on a foreclosure.

The navy department has been using the land for some time and there are temporary buildings on it.

Notice of Joint Meeting June 6

There will be a joint meeting of the Village Board and the Commercial Association on Friday evening, June 6, at which time Attorney E. M. Runyard and County Superintendent of Highway Russell will be here, for the purpose of taking up matters of importance. Every member of the Board and every member of the Association is invited to attend.

W. R. Williams, Sec'y.

Power of Imagination.

To those who see only with their eyes, the distant is always indistinct and little, becoming less and less as it recedes, till utterly lost; but to the imagination, which thus reverses the perspective of the senses, the far off is great and imposing, the magnitude increasing with the distance.—Mrs. Jameson (Studies).

Knew She Would Be Asked.

Tillie was leaving to go over to her little chum's house, when she suddenly turned in the door and called to her mother, "Mamma, has baby brother got any teeth yet?" When asked why she wished to know, she replied, "So I can tell Mabel's mother. She always asks me if he has any teeth yet when I go over to play with Mabel."

Colors for Dyeing.

White, very light cream, pink, blue or green can be dyed any color. Light red may be dyed a darker red, purple, plum or brown. Brown will become a darker brown by the use of crimson or garnet. A dark green may be dyed a deeper shade of green, brown or black.

Her Ears Open.

A little girl who always has her ears open for the conversation of her elders, heard her grandmother diagnosing a case of the hives. Later this little girl noticed a red spot on her arm. She ran to her grandmother, exclaiming: "Oh, grandma, see, I have the hives, too."

The Great Art.

There is but one art—to omit! Oh, if I knew how to omit I would ask no other knowledge. A man who knew how to omit would make an "illad" of a daily paper.—Robert Louis Stevenson.

Sure Sign.

Said the head barber (all barbers being head ones, strictly speaking), "I can always tell a man who is used to shaving himself by the way he tries to puff out his cheeks in ticklish places."

Mothers in Heaven.

"Perhaps even from heaven our mothers see us and protect us still. I think they do."—Mothers and Children, by Frank Danby.

ANTIOCH CHAPTER ENTERTAINS

Guests Were Present From Many Outside Chapters
Afternoon and Evening

RECEIVED TEN CANDIDATES

Antioch Chapter No. 423, O. E. S., entertained a large number of out of town guests on Thursday afternoon and evening of last week.

The afternoon session was called to order at 2:30 o'clock and the degrees were conferred upon four candidates. At the close of the afternoon service a short time was spent in getting acquainted with each other and beginning at five thirty o'clock a course dinner was served to close to two hundred persons in the room below the hall. This room had been very prettily decorated for the occasion and when the twenty small tables were spread with snow white linens, the pretty silver and china the place was veritable bower of beauty and to add to its attractiveness the large front windows decorated with potted plants intermingled with apple blossoms and strips of paper representing the lodge colors amongst, which perched blue birds galore, thus forming a beautiful background for the High School orchestra, which under the leadership of Rev. Pollock furnished lively music during the serving of the dinner. At eight o'clock the evening session was called to order and a class of six candidates received the degrees. At the close of the initiatory work, several interesting speeches were heard, among the speakers were Miss Florence Schofield, a Grand Lecturer of the Order, and Mrs. J. McKorkle of Chicago, who was one of the four minute speakers in that city during the recent Liberty Loan campaigns. The worthy Matrons and Worthy Patrons of visiting Chapters, as well as several visiting Past Patrons, Arthur Rosenfeldt, F. B. Huber and Charles Blunt represented the home Chapter while the candidates of the evening responded with a right good will when called upon for remark. Mrs. Krieger of Chicago contributed her share of the entertainment by rendering a number of beautiful solos.

Guests were present from Sorosis Chapter, Grayslake, Waukegan chapter, Millburn Chapter, Richmond chapter, Bristol Chapter, Lakeside and several other chapter of Chicago. The evening session closed at eleven thirty o'clock and each person departed with the feeling that the O. E. S. was indeed a grand and glorious Order.

Swift Is Among Those Opposing Daylight Plan

Farmers came into their own in the legislature last week when the senate concurred in joint resolution memorializing congress to go back to the old sun time and push the clocks an hour back again. The vote was 17 to 7. The house passed the original resolution several weeks ago.

The farmers insist that they lose an hour each day under the new time and that it means a money loss to the average farmer of from $500 to $800 a year. The early morning dew interferes with farm work, they assert.

"It was a considerable merriment as the debate went on.

"During the last two years there has been more emotional hysteria than ever in the history of the country," was the comment of Senator Swift, a dairy farmer. "The most refreshing hour of sleep is that hour in the morning when the dew is on the grass and the grain. Now getting up time on my farm is 3:30 in the morning."

The Black Diamond.

Although white diamonds come chiefly from the Transvaal, the black diamond is found in its greatest purity in Brazil and especially in the Province of Bahia. For its finest specimens so far discovered a price of $20,000 was paid—quite insignificant when compared with prices paid for white diamonds.

Got Fat on Poor Food.

A recruit at one of the southern camps wrote a long letter home, which he started by telling how rotten the food was, and that he didn't get enough to eat. Near the end of the letter, about page fifteen, he told the folks how fat he was getting, having gained ten pounds in about a month.

Dances and Card Parties to Pay Revenue Tax

Benefit dances, bunco card parties or similar enterprises, unless the proceeds go entirely to religious, educational or charitable purposes, are subject to war tax, according to a ruling received by Victor N. Trauscht, deputy internal revenue collector, of Waukegan. No war tax is levied where officers of religious, educational or charitable organizations do not get the proceeds. Persons who operate dances and card parties for private gain who make false affidavits are subject to fines. Deputy Trauscht states that affidavits claiming exemption from tax may be filed where religious, educational or charitable organizations give card parties or dances where it is shown the profit all goes to furthering the interests of the organization and the promoters derive no personal gain.

Deputy Revenue Collector Horan of Waukegan was in town Monday and notified dance promoters that a tax of one cent for each 10 cents or fraction thereof the amount of admission must be paid for all admissions. "In case of persons (except bona fide employees, municipal officers on official business, persons in the military or naval forces of the United States when in uniform, and children under twelve years of age) admitted free or at reduced rates to any place at a time when and under circumstances under which an admission charge is made to other persons, a tax of 1 cent for each 10 cents or fraction thereof of the price so charged to other persons for the same or similar accommodations, to be paid by the person so admitted."

O'Connor Has Huge White Owl Mounted

The enormous White Owl captured by J. J. O'Connor a few months ago at his resort at Grass Lake, has been mounted and is now on exhibition at the O'Connor place.

This is the one given much publicity at the time of its capture on account of the extreme rarity of the species and the fight the enormous bird made before it was subdued.

Since having the owl mounted, Mr. O'Connor has been approached by representatives from the state who want it for the state museum and he has promised to make the state a present of the beautiful and are specimen after the coming season, as he wants to keep the bird for a time for exhibition to his friends.

Burglars Enter Bernhoff Saloon

The saloon of William Bernhoff at Silverlake was entered by burglars late Sunday night. The men entered by a window which was broken open with a "jimmy." A search of the place was made and the burglars got some money and a considerable supply of liquor. No arrests have been made in the case but it is believed that the burglary can be charged to some of the men who have been loafing about ice houses in the neighborhood.

Permanent Colors.

Ancient Egyptians had a marvelous knowledge of colors, and they understood fully what colors would last. In the Egyptian papyrus the ground colors are as good as ever they were. The Egyptians worked their outlines in lamplight, used clay for their whites, ferruginous earths for their reds, ochres for their yellows, and for greens they used perhaps green jasper or mixed blue carbonate of copper with ochre. All these colors are permanent.

It used to be that the treating habit was more expensive than to drink alone but times have changed. For instance, if you go into a store and order a 15 cent soda you have to pay two cents war tax, but if you take a friend along and buy a 15 cent drink for him, you will have to pay only one cent war tax on his drink and one on your own. If you and your friend should pay separately, a two cent tax would be added to each.

Mike Smolz, Fourteenth and State street, North Chicago, placed under arrest Monday night on a charge of violating the prohibitory law, by a deputy U. S. marshal, was given a hearing before Commissioner Lewis F. Mason, in Chicago, and was held for trial before the federal grand jury. He was placed under bonds of $3,500, which he furnished and was released. It is charged Smolz had driven to Lake Zurich and laid in a supply of liquor. He was arrested upon his return to North Chicago.

The Tiffany Motor Company have just hung a beautiful new electric sign which is attracting lots of attention. The sign represents an automobile with G-A-R-A-G-E on the body, the letters being a blaze of light at night. Other smaller lights are shown over the wheels. The sign was bought of a firm in Minneapolis. It gives the place a cityified appearance, and speaks for the progressive spirit of the firm.—Chetek Alert.

Crystal Theater Opens Friday Evening May 30

P. E. Chinn, has returned to his old business of conducting a show house in this village. He has again leased his former location in the Wilton block, recently vacated by the Majestic Theater company, and will give his first show Decoration Day night, beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

The place has been given a thorough overhauling, it has been freshly decorated, a new floor has been laid, a new booth has been installed and a canopy front is being built.

On the opening night the play will be a Metro production entitled "In Judgment Of."

Relative Value of Milk.

The fat globules of goats' milk are so small that cream rises very slowly. This quality, however, gives to the milk a uniform richness not possessed by cows' milk. There are now several condensed milk factories using goats' milk, which is condensed and sold for infant feeding. Many thousands of infants are compelled to live during their first few months on condensed cows' milk, and it is not the best food for their stomachs.

Humor in the Classroom.

Ethel, who was ten years old, was studying her reader, and learned that fish are placed in brine before they are dried and prepared for sale. After explaining that brine is very salt water, the teacher asked why the fish were placed in it. Ethel's face was illuminated with sudden understanding, and she promptly replied: "Because they are used to salt water."

Cleanliness Necessary.

When our daughter was six years old she was taken to see her first vaudeville performance. One number on the program was a dancer, who wore very little, and Lova's first remark when she saw the dancer was: "Oh, mamma, but she has to wash herself clean, so much of her shows."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Aged Woman Passes, Left a Note Choosing Bearers

Mrs. Charity Raught, formerly of Volo, and one of the original prohibition workers, one of the original W. C. T. U. women of Lake County, died at the home of her son Charles Raught, West and Clayton street, Waukegan, last Wednesday.

The Eastern Star of Grayslake, of which Mrs. Raught was one of the charter members had charge of the services at Oakwood cemetery, Waukegan.

Mrs. Raught was a wonderful woman a fact shown forcefully in her act by which she selected the pallbearers from among her relatives whom she wished to carry her body to its resting place. They will be: John Sutherland, Henry Sutherland, Neal Shultis, Clarence Shultis, Carl Atterbery, Robert Fulton.

Mrs. Raught had been ill with hardening of the arteries for eight years. Since May 1st her condition has been very serious. Her passing therefore did not come unexpectedly.

Mrs. Raught left a paper which she wrote herself in which she mentioned the pallbearers she desired and also made several other requests and gave facts concerning her life.

For forty years the Raught family lived at Volo and none was better known there. Mr. Raught died thirteen years ago. For seven years past Mrs. Raught resided with her son Charles in Waukegan.

A friend in speaking of Mrs. Raught said: "She was a wonderful woman. If the minister was absent at a service, she could deliver as fine a sermon as one would wish to hear. Fact is, she was better than many ministers who have studied for the profession."

'Suicide' Girl Found Insane; Goes to Elgin

Nellie Dailey, the 18 year old Grayslake girl who tried to commit suicide by jumping into Lake Michigan off the government pier in Waukegan, and rescued by two Great Lakes sailors, was adjudged insane in the county court and was taken to Elgin.

The Dailey girl displayed incorrigible fits of temper and was in poor health, the sanity test showed. Several months ago she attempted suicide by swallowing an ounce of perfume as a result of which she became seriously ill and was in a dazed condition for a week.

She had been working in Milwaukee and had went to Waukegan after visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Dailey, previous to her attempt at self destruction in Waukegan a week ago.

Memorial Services Friday Morning

There will be a memorial service at the Antioch cemetery on Memorial Day, Friday, May 30, at 11:00 a. m. The procession will form at St. Ignatius Episcopal church at 10:30 and march to the cemetery. Mr. Hill of Spokane, Washington, will make an address at the cemetery. He is a graduate of Harvard University and was at one time a student for the Presbyterian ministry. At present Mr. Hill is studying for the priesthood in the Episcopal church.

All old soldiers, and also every young man who participated in any way in our recent war, as well as all of the school children of Antioch and surrounding schools and every citizen of Antioch is requested to bring flags or flowers with which to decorate the graves of the departed heroes.

Additional Locals

"What they used to call the decent thing we call indecent. You said yourself that marriage without love was horrible. And it is; it's all quarrel and nagging and deceit. If people are faithful to each other morally they seem to quarrel all the more. Long ago I vowed I'd never marry, and I don't intend to. I don't want to marry you. But I want your life."

"Mr. Duane! Really, this is outrageous."

"No, it isn't! Hush and listen, honey—Miss Kip—Daphne—whatever you'll let me call you. I told you I was stark, staring, crazy mad about you. When I think of you looking for work, living in that awful spare room of those awful Chivvies—when I think of you going from place to place at the mercy of such men as you're sure to meet—when I think of you waiting for poor Wimburn to get out of the poorhouse, I want to grab you in my arms and run away with you. It breaks my heart to see you in distress and anxiety; for I want you to have everything beautiful and cheerful in the world. And I can get it all for you. Let me! Let me love you and try to make you happy, won't you?"

She Was More Afraid of Him Now Than Ever.

He had crowded nearer and he held her fast against the door of the car.

His right hand clung to hers; his left slid down to her waist. He drew her toward him, staring up beseechingly. He laid his cheek against her left side like a child, the big man pleading to the little woman for mercy.

She felt sorry for him and for herself. She regretted that cruelty was her one unmistakable duty. She had no right to be kind, and charity would be a sin. She wrung her hands free from his with slow persuasion and shook her head pitifully.

He accepted the decision with a nod, but before she could escape from his arm she felt that he pressed his lips against her just above her heart. It was as if he had softly driven a nail into it. Tears flamed to her eyelids and fell on his hands as he carried them to his bent brow. He crossed them on the wheel and hid his face in them, groaning.

"Daphne! Daphne!"

She was more afraid of him now than ever. All the splendors he could promise her were nothing to that profusion of his longing.

While she wavered in a battle of impulses, he regained self-control with self-contempt, in a general clench of resolution. "I apologize," he mumbled.

"I'm a fool to think that you could love me."

CHAPTER XX.

Duane did not speak till miles and miles of black road had run backward beneath their wheels. Then he grumbled, "What a fool I was to dream of such a thing!"

More miles went under before her curiosity led her to say, faintly, "What were you dreaming of?"

He laughed, and did not answer for another while. Then he laughed again.

"Do you really want to know?"

"I think so."

"Well, you couldn't hate me any more than you do, so I tell you. I don't mind that I told never before of my love."

"Is that all?"

"No, not that I am crazy about my car, but that I don't take the pleasure in perishing myself for the woman I love, but that I don't take my life as a gift."

"You mean you're doing a tremendous thing by letting me love you?"

"That's just what I mean."

"But I don't want to marry you."

"I don't want to marry you."

"I don't want to marry you."

does him, and sacrifices a blamed sight more. He gives up his freedom, and if she gives up hers she's only giving up something she doesn't know how to use anyway."

Daphne had rarely found a man who would talk to her with Duane's frankness, and if there is anything that interests a woman more than another it is to hear womankind analyzed, even satirized. She was eager for more vinegar.

"You won't be shocked and angry?" he asked.

"I don't think so."

"You don't know how pleasant it is to talk life and love to a woman who doesn't rear up and feel insulted at everything. At first you gave me a couple of how-dare-you's, but they don't count. And if you do hate me a little more, why, so much the better. When I thought you had broken with Wimburn I said to myself, 'She's the one girl in the world for me. I'm going to ask her to marry me.' But I was afraid to, for I was afraid of marriage. And then—Well, I'd better not—Yes, I will. I said, 'She believes that men and women are equal and have equal rights, and she's going to get out and hustle for herself, like a little man. Maybe she could learn to love me well enough to go into a partnership of hearts.' That's what I said to myself. You mustn't think it's because I don't want to cleave to one woman; it's because I do. But I hate handcliffs. Do you see? And now you know what I was dreaming of. What do you think of it?"

The answer to his long oration was complete silence. Duane waited for his answer, and, not getting it, laughed harshly. "Well, that's that. The next number on our program will be a ballad entitled 'I Never Dream but I Bump My Head.' Go on! Marry Clay Wimburn on nothing a year and live miserably ever after."

She said nothing to this, either. Duane was in a wretched state of bafflement. He put the car to its paces, and it ripped through space at fifty miles an hour. Daphne had a new terror added to the load of her nerves.

The car went bounding up a steep incline toward the swerve of a headland cut in rigid silhouette by the far-reaching searchlight of a car approaching from the other direction. Duane kept well to the outside of the road, but just as he met the other motor and winced in the dazzle of its lamps, a third car trying to pass it on the curve hurtled into the narrow space with a blaze like lightning searing the eyes. There was a yelling and hooting of horns and a sense of disaster.

Daphne bent her head and prayed for life, but without faith. Duane, half-blinded, swung his front wheels off the road and grazed a wall. The rear wheels were not quick enough. The other car smote them, crumpling the mudguard and slicing off the rear lamp.

Daphne was thrown this way and that, and it seemed that her spine must have snapped in a dozen places. When she opened her eyes again the car was standing still. Duane turned to her with terrified questions, and his hands visited her face and her arms and shoulders. He held her hands fast and peered into her eyes while she promised him that she was not dead.

The car that had bested his did not return, but the other did, offering help from a safe distance till its identity was established. In the light of its lamp Duane got down and examined his own car. Besides the damages in the rear, it had sustained a complete fracture of the front axle, a twisted fender, and a shattered headlight.

The driver of the other car came up and joined the corner's inquest. He stared at Duane, and cried in the tone of an English aristocrat, "Goddamn your soul, ain't you Tom Duane?"

Duane, blinking in the light, peered at him and said: "Yop! I can't see you, but the voice would be Wetherell's."

"Right-o; it's me. Oh, pardon me, you're not alone. Nobody hurt, I hope and pray."

"No, but we're pretty far from home and country."

"I see! Hum-m! Pity I couldn't get the number of the swine that bit you. I rather fancy I'll have to give you a lift—what? I was out on a kangaroo hunt, but that will wait—if you don't mind trusting yourself to bad company."

Duane lowered his voice anxiously. "Is it very bad?"

Wetherell put the mute on his voice. "As good as yours, I'll wager. But let's not go into family history. Come along and we'll take you to the next neutral port. That would be—"

"Yonkers."

"Oh, yes. I fancy those were the Yonkers we came through a few miles back. Well, come along."

Duane was embarrassed, but he could do nothing except take Wetherell to his car and introduce him to Daphne. "Miss Kip," he said, "I've got to present Mr. Wetherell. He wants us to ride with him as far as Yonkers. We'll get another car there."

Wetherell came close and said: "Did he say Mrs. Kip? I can't see you, but I hope you are the fascinating Mrs. Kip I met at Newport. Have you forgotten me so soon?"

"I am Miss Kip," said Daphne.

"Oh, so sorry! I don't mean that. But my Mrs. Kip was a siren—Lella was her first name. I called her De-llella, you see. And she called me Samson. She was a—"

"She is my brother's wife," said Daphne.

"Oh, you don't tell me!" Wetherell gulped, and his abrupt silence was full of startling implications that alarmed Daphne, angered Duane, and threw Wetherell into confusion.

Duane helped Daphne to alight from the derelict and transferred her to the other car, where Wetherell introduced them to a mass of shadow whose name, "Mrs. Bettany," meant nothing to Daphne and everything to Duane.

Duane arranged to have a wrecking crew sent out to his roadster, and chartered a touring car and a chauffeur for the trip into New York.

He sat back with Daphne and murmured prayers for forgiveness because of the dangers he had carried her into and for the things he had said. Daphne's nerves had been overworked. She had been rushed from adventure to adventure of soul and body. She had been invited to enter a career of gorgeous sin, and she had been swept along the edge of a fearful disaster.

Mrs. Chivvis met Daphne at the door. Her recent affection had turned again to scorn, and she glowered at Daphne, who crept to her room in hopeless acceptance of the role of adventuress.

Tired as she was she could not sleep. The clangor of the morning called her to the window. A gray day broke on a weary town. The problem of debt and food and new clothes dawned again. Everything was gray before her.

Wisdom whispered her to take Duane at his word and try the great adventure. How could it bring her to worse confusion than she found about her now? And then the morning laid arrived and brought her a large envelope addressed in a strange hand. She opened it and took from it a sheaf of photographs.

Her father's image a dozen times repeated lay before her. The untouched proofs omitted never a line, never a wrinkle. One of the pictures looked straight at her. She recalled that once she had stood back of the photographer and her father had caught her eye and smiled just as the bulb was pressed.

She made him smile like that. What would his expression be when he learned that she had "listened to reason," ceased to be his daughter, and become Tom Duane's—

She shuddered back from the word and the thought. She forgot both in the joy of reunion with her father. All the philosophies and wisdoms and luxuries were answered by the logic of that smile.

She lifted his pictured lips to hers with filial eagerness and her tears pattered ruinously on the proof. She was satisfied to be what the jeweler in Cleveland had called her to Clay Wimburn—"old Wes Kip's girl."

Suddenly she remembered Wetherell and his messages to Lella. She felt so renewedly virtuous herself that it seemed her duty to go down and rebuke Lella for her apparent philanthropy at Newport. She was also curious to see how guilty Lella would receive the news that Wetherell had asked for her.

But she found Bayard at home for luncheon and she was neither mad nor mean enough to confuse Lella before him. And this was rather for his sake than Lella's.

Lella was just informing Bayard that the butcher had delivered the morning's order no farther than the freight elevator, and instructed his boy to send the meat up only after the money came down.

Bayard had no money and the chagrin of his situation was bitter. He snarled at Lella: "Tell the cub to take the meat back and eat it himself. Then I'll go over and butcher the butcher."

Lella dismissed the boy with a faint-hearted show of indignation. Then she came back and said, "And now we have no meat to eat."

Bayard was reduced to philosophy, the last resort of the desperate: "Well, the vegetarians say we ought never to eat meat, anyway. We're poor, but, my Lord! we're in grand company. Look at this cartoon of Cesare's in the Sun—Father Knickerbocker turning his pockets inside out and not a penny in them. New York city has to borrow money on short-time notes at high interest to pay its own current bills."

"Look at Europe. All the countries over there were stumbling along under such debt that they wondered how they could meet the interest on the next pay day. And now they are mortgaging their great-grandsons' property to pay for shooting their sons."

"It's the old Thirteenth Commandment that we've all been smashing to flinders. And, my God! what a punishment we're all getting! And it's only beginning."

They sat down to a pitiful meal—meatless, mirthless—hardly more than the raw turnips and cold water of Colonel Sellers. Lella fetched what victual there was.

After the meal Bayard shrugged into his overcoat and left without kissing his wife or his sister goodby.

Daphne and Lella went out to the kitchen, set the dishes in the pan, and the pan under the faucet. Lella turned on the hot water. Daphne was glad to be at work.

"There's one good thing about a small meal," she chirped, "it makes less dishes to wash." Then, with as much trepidation as if she had been the accused instead of the accuser she faltered: "Oh, say, Lella, do you remember a man named Wetherell?"

Lella dropped a plate. She said it was hot. But other plates had been hot.

"Wetherell? Wetherell?" she pondered, aloud, with an unconvinced uncertainty. "I believe I do remember meeting somebody of that name. English, wasn't he?"

"Very."

"Oh, yes. He was at Newport, I think. Why?"

"Oh, nothing. I met him last night and he thought I was you."

"How could he?" Lella gasped. "We don't look the least alike."

"It was in the dark."

"In the dark! Good heavens! Where?"

Already Lella had gained the weather gauge. Daphne had to confess her outing with Duane, the crash of the collision and the return to Yonkers in Wetherell's car. Lella took advantage of the situation to interpolate:

"Good heavens! How could you? You of all people! And with Tom Duane! What would Clay think?"

Daphne knew that she had no right to reproach Lella for having known Wetherell in Newport. She had no right even to suspect that Lella had overstepped any of the bounds of propriety. And still she was not convinced of Lella's innocence. She was merely silenced.

CHAPTER XXI.

The next day her fears of Wetherell and of Lella were rekindled. She went down to ask Bayard to help her trace Clay. Bayard was out and Lella was on the point of leaving. She was dressed in her killagest frock and hat and generally accoutered for conquest.

"Aren't we grand!" Daphne cried. "You look like a million dollars. Where are you off to?"

"Going for a little spin."

"Who with?"

Lella hesitated a moment, then answered, with a challenging defiance: "With Mr. Wetherell. Any objection?"

Daphne disapproved and felt afraid; but when Bayard came in unexpectedly early and asked for Lella Daphne knew inevitably and said she did not know where she was.

She tried to be casual about it, but Bayard caught fire at once. He was already in a state of undery irritability, and Daphne's efforts to reassure him as to Lella's innocence of any guile only angered him the more.

He kept leaning out of the window and staring down into the street. Finally, spying Lella in Wetherell's car when it approached the apartment house, he dashed to the elevator and met the two at the curb.

When Lella got out she was startled to see him standing at her elbow. There was nothing for her to do but make the introductions.

"Oh, it's you, dear!" she fluttered. "I want you to meet Mr. Wetherell."

"Mr. Wetherell, my husband."

"Ah, really!" Wetherell exclaimed, trying to conceal his uneasiness. "This is a bit of luck! I've heard so much about you! Your wife does nothing but sing your praises."

"Won't you come up?" said Bayard ominously.

"Er—thanks—no, not today. I'm a trifle late to an—er—appointment."

"Then I'll have a word with you here," said Bayard. "Run along, Lella; I'll join you in a minute."

He said it pleasantly, but Lella was terrified. The spectacle of rival bucks locking horns in her dispute is not altogether enjoyable to a civilized doe.

Lella went into the vestibule and watched through the glass door, expecting a combat. She could not hear Bayard saying:

"Mr. Wetherell, I'd thank you to pay your attentions elsewhere."

"What's that?" Wetherell gasped at the abrupt attack.

"Your attentions to Mrs. Kip are very distasteful to me."

"My dear fellow, I hope you don't imagine for one moment that—Why, your wife is the finest little girl in the world!"

"That's for me to say, not you!"

"My word! this is amazing!"

"It is, indeed. It will be more than that if you come around again. Had you heard that your country was at war?"

"I had."

"Well, a big, strapping fellow like you ought to be over there fighting for his country instead of looking for trouble here."

Wetherell's panic at the domestic situation was forgotten in the attack on his patriotism. He drew himself up with an unconsciously military automatism and said, "I fancy I'm doing as much service here as I could do over there."

"More, perhaps," Bayard sneered, with contemptuous irony. "But that's your business, not mine. Mrs. Kip is my business and I don't intend to have her subjected to your—your attentions. I'm trying to be neutral, but by—Well, I've warned you. Good day!"

Bayard joined Lella in the vestibule and they went up in the elevator together. She waited till they were in their own apartment before she demanded an account of the conversation.

He told her in a rage and she flew into another. She divided her wrath between Bayard and Daphne. There was enough for both. Daphne tried to escape, but, being cornered, proceeded to fight back, whereupon Lella denounced her to Bayard and told of her ride with Duane.

It was a right good fight and getting well beyond the bounds of discretion when the telephone announced that Clay Wimburn was calling.

Nobody imaginable would have been welcome in that battlefield, but Clay seemed peculiarly ill timed. Bayard went to the telephone and called down:

"Tell him we're out."

"Yes, sir."

Evidently the telephone was taken from the hallman's hand, for Clay's voice roared in Bayard's ear:

"I hear you, you old villain. I know you're in, and I'm coming up. It's a matter of life and death. I'm on my way up now."

It seemed decent that Lella and Daphne should disappear, since Bayard had said that they were all out. The women retreated to Lella's room as a good cologne of addition.

The man or woman with weak kidneys is half crippled. A lame, stiff back, with its constant, dull ache and sharp, shooting twinges, makes the simplest task a burden. Headaches, dizzy spells, urinary disorders, and an "all worn out" feeling are daily sources of distress. Don't neglect kidney weakness and risk gravel, dropsy or Bright's disease. Get a box of Doan's Kidney Pills today. They have helped people the world over.

An Iowa Case

Mrs. S. J. Stump, Leon, Iowa, says: "My kidneys were weak and for a whole year I couldn't walk across the floor unless I leaned on a chair and pushed it ahead of me. I felt so miserable and despondent I was nearly frantic. I tried one treatment after another and each, in turn, failed to give me any relief. Finally I was advised to use Doan's Kidney Pills. They cured me. Since then I have been in good shape and able to do all of my household work."

YES, THEY WERE IN THE WAR

Kaiser Might Have Remembered Being Introduced to Americans at Chateau-Thierry.

The first American to meet the knacker at Amerongen was Sergt. James McAdams, formerly marine recruiting officer in Cleveland.

Sergeant McAdams was attached last December to the American embassy in Paris as special courier to the American legations in Brussels and The Hague after serving at Chateau-Thierry.

"I had a little while to loaf while in The Hague," he said, "and since Amerongen is only two and a half hours' ride away, my chum and I decided to see the Kaiser's home. We met him in the count's park. He was strolling leisurely along in his alpenjagger hunting suit. We saluted him and stopped."

"Are you Americans?" he asked, using perfect English.

"You bet we are," we replied.

"Were you in the war?" he questioned further.

"Didn't you meet us at Chateau-Thierry?" we grinned back.

SAFE, GENTLE REMEDY BRINGS SURE RELIEF

For 200 years GOLD MEDAL Hair-Oil has enabled suffering humanity to withstand attacks of kidney, liver, bladder and stomach troubles and all diseases connected with the urinary organs, and to build up and restore to health organs weakened by disease. These most important organs must be watched, because they filter and purify the blood; unless they do their work you are doomed.

Weariness, sleeplessness, nervousness, despondency, headache, stomach trouble, pains in the loins and lower abdomen, gravel, rheumatism, sciatica and lumbago all warn you of trouble with your kidneys. GOLD MEDAL Hair-Oil Capsules are the remedy you need. Take three or four every day. The healing oil soaks into the cells and lining of the kidneys and drives out the poisons. New life and health will surely follow. When your normal vigor has been restored continue treatment for a while to keep yourself in condition and prevent a return of the disease.

Don't wait until you are incapable of fighting. Start taking GOLD MEDAL Hair-Oil Capsules today. Your druggist will cheerfully refund your money if you are not satisfied with results. But be sure to get the original imported GOLD MEDAL, and accept no substitutes. In three sizes. Sealed packages. At all drug stores.

BLIND MAN POULTRY FANCIER
Missouri Man Has Made Success of the Work, Despite Handicap Which Would Seem Insurmountable.

Blind Edward Jones of Jefferson City, Mo., has made a record in keeping poultry which many who have eyes have not equaled. Moving among his birds, which seem to understand how he is handicapped, and guided only by his sense of touch, he performs his daily work. He has built his own poultry house and brood coops, and has hatched and raised all his chicks. Blindness does not prevent him from culling his flock. The birds not intended to be kept are marketed as broilers, and the others are kept for the production of winter eggs.

Mr. Jones attended every poultry meeting held in his section last fall. He is now trying to organize a poultry club for blind people, and the home demonstration agent in the county has volunteered to read to the members the publications on poultry sent from the United States department of agriculture.

The Pleasures of Travel.
"Wa-al-p'u—no," said the ancient Arkansawyer, "I ain't never did much of what you'd call traveling. I was 97 years old last grass; born and raised right here in Shagbark township, and ain't been outside of the county but once. That was when I was about 30 years old. I went over to Torphville, and they just nacherly took and started to lynch me the minute I got to town, for something or another. I never did find out what. One foot was already in the air and the other barely touching the ground when some fellow came running and holed that they were making a mistake—I wasn't the guilty party at all. As soon as they turned me loose I lit out for home as the crow flies, and I ain't done no traveling to speak of since. I always figured that on the next occasion the fellow that knowed it was a mistake might not get there in time to do me any good."—Judge.

ENEMY PROTESTS ECONOMIC TERMS

"Would Be Death Sentence for Millions of Teutons," Says Brockdorff-Rantzau.

ALLIES WON'T MODIFY PACT

"Big Four" Decides Austria Is Able to Pay Indemnity—Will Be Ordered to Surrender Merchant Fleet.

Paris, May 24.—"Those who will sign this treaty will sign the death sentence of millions of German men, women and children," declared Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau, head of the German peace delegation, in the formal protest to the allies against the economic conditions of the peace treaty, which was rejected in another communication forwarded by the allies.

"A rash assertion," was Premier Clemenceau's reply on behalf of the allies to the dramatic declaration by Count Brockdorff-Rantzau.

Premier Clemenceau reminded the Germans that they might well bear larger loss of life as a result of the war, since they started it. He denied, however, that the economic restrictions imposed on Germany would mean her death, pointing to Great Britain as a nation which imports at least half her food supplies and most of her raw materials from abroad.

While a great many persons are firmly convinced that the Germans will sign the peace treaty, the fact that the allies allowed Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau to bring printing apparatus to Versailles indicates that the Germans are planning to suggest some drastic changes in the original. In this connection President Wilson's attitude is said to be: He is willing to receive suggestions that will improve the treaty, but is unwilling to consider modifications. The treaty demands are based upon "justice and right."

The big four have been devoting all possible time to the Austrian problems and it is understood that the economic experts have decided that Austria is able to pay indemnity. This is expected to be made part of the treaty at once. It is also declared that Austria will be called upon to forfeit her shipping along the lines that the German merchant fleet was disposed of. The question of limitation of Austrian armaments has also been considered.

Coblentz, May 23.—Lieut. Gen. Hunter Liggett, commander of the army of occupation, and Maj. Gen. John Hines, commander of the Third corps, who were on their way to London, were recalled to Coblentz by orders from American general headquarters.

Nine hundred motortrucks began to move from west of the Rhine to the bridgehead area. The trucks are being distributed to various points of advantage among the troops holding the zone east of the Rhine should the occasion arise for the Americans to start an advance.

The recall of Generals Liggett and Hines, was learned in Coblentz, is part of the new program for the American army in the event the Germans do not accept the peace treaty.

THAT CHANGE IN WOMAN'S LIFE

Mrs. Godden Tells How It May Be Passed in Safety and Comfort.

Fremont, O.—"I was passing through the critical period of life, being forty-six years of age and had all the symptoms incident to that change—heat flashes, nervousness, and was in a general run down condition, so it was hard for me to do my work. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me as the best remedy for my troubles, which it surely proved to be. I feel better and stronger in every way since taking it, and the annoying symptoms have disappeared."—Mrs. M. GODDEN, 925 Napoleon St., Fremont, Ohio.

Such annoying symptoms as heat flashes, nervousness, headache, irritability and "the blues," may be speedily overcome and the system restored to normal conditions by this famous root and herb remedy Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If any complications present themselves write the Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for suggestions how to overcome them. The result of forty years experience is at your service and your letter held in strict confidence.

USE SANO FLOUR
WHY?

First—It is a high quality flour—milled at home
Second—Much care is given to keeping the quality uniform
Third—It is milled from the choicest wheat grown in the community. There is no freight paid on either wheat or flour; no expensive traveling salesmen. Thus we can afford to make better flour for the same price
Fourth—A local flour mill helps to make a better community, as it encourages the growing of a good grade of wheat and offers a better market for it; besides, it furnishes mill feed to our farm people without an element of freight involved.

In justice to yourself and to our community you should give

HAWKER FOUND ALIVE AT SEA

British Flyer and His Aid Are Saved by Danish Steamer Mary.

TRANSFERRED TO A WARSHIP

Battleship Revenge Takes Rescued Flyers to Scotland, Whence They Went to London—Thanksgiving Services in Churches.

London, May 27.—Harry Hawker and Lieutenant Commander Grieve, who started a week ago on a transatlantic air flight from Newfoundland to Ireland, were rescued by the Danish steamer Mary, bound for Horsens, Denmark.

The two airmen have been transferred from the Mary to the British battleship Revenge and spent the night in Scapaflow, the Orkneys, as the guests of Admiral Fremantle. They put ashore at Thurso, where they will board a train for London.

Harry G. Hawker sent the following statement to the London Daily Mail: "My machine stopped owing to the water filter in the freepipe from the radiator to the water pump being blocked with refuse, such as solder and the like shaking loose in the radiator.

"It was no fault of the Rolls-Royce motor, which ran absolutely perfectly from start to finish, even when all the water had boiled away.

"We had no trouble in alighting on the sea, where we were picked up by the tramp ship Mary, after being in the water for 90 minutes. We leave Aarhus at 2 p. m. Monday, arriving in London Tuesday evening."

The Mary reported that she had picked up the two flyers Monday in latitude 50.20 north; longitude 20.30 west, approximately half way between Newfoundland and the coast of Ireland, for which they headed after leaving St. Johns.

The airplane had been forced to descend close to the steamer because of stoppage of circulation in the water pipe leading to the radiator. The steamer happened along in the nick of time, because the plane could not have floated long in the turbulent sea and the lifeboat contrivance would have been of little avail.

The airplane was abandoned. Both men are reported to be in perfect health.

Lloyds received a message from Butt of Lewis that the Danish steamer Mary signaled, "Saved Hands Sorrow with airplane!"

The steamer was asked: "Is it Hawker?"

The Mary replied: "Yes."

The Danish steamer Mary sailed May 4 from Norfolk for Denmark.

London, May 27.—Like news from beyond the grave came the report that Harry G. Hawker and Lieutenant Commander Mackenzie Grieve had been picked up at sea by a Danish ship.

The glad tidings spread through the city like wildfire and was greeted with wild demonstrations of joy everywhere.

The greatest demonstration of all took place in the village of Surbiton, where Hawker has his home.

Hawker's wife was overjoyed at the announcement of her husband's rescue.

"I knew he'd come back," she said to the Universal Service correspondent who had called at the cottage. "I had a presentiment he was not dead all the time. Oh, I'm the happiest woman in the world. Harry can fly across the Atlantic again any time he wants to. I'm sure his good luck will continue."

Special thanksgiving services were held in the Surbiton churches at night.

The Mary is a small steamship, with a wireless outfit of limited radius. Stormy weather along the northern Atlantic steamship routes in the last few days may also account for the delay in communicating news of the rescue.

It had been reported a storm of tremendous violence was raging along the coast of Hawker's flight last Monday morning, and it was supposed the plane must have fallen to the sea in attempting to buck its way through the cyclonic winds.

London had absolutely given up hope for the safety of the aviators; the matter had been taken up in parliament and the government had been severely criticized for sending "two gallant gentlemen" to their death because of its failure to take any measures to insure their safety, although the success of their enterprise would have redounded to the glory of the nation.

Can't Publish on Sunday. Christiania, May 26.—The Norwegian government has issued a decree prohibiting the publication of newspapers on Sundays and holidays.

Seeks Union With Finland. Washington, May 27.—The Olenets in western Russia are seeking a union of their territory with Finland, according to Helsingfors reports to the Swedish press transmitted to the state department.

Switzerland a Popular Resort. Sofia, May 27.—Switzerland being overcrowded with ex-monarchs and fugitive princes, the king of Bulgaria has requested the government of Czechoslovakia to grant him refuge there.

HAWKER AND GRIEVE

Pilot Harry G. Hawker (right) and Lieut. Com. Mackenzie Grieve, who were rescued by the little Danish steamer Mary, 800 miles off the Irish coast on Monday, May 10, after they had been forced to alight on the sea owing to engine trouble. The flyers were in the water only 90 minutes before they were picked up.

DRASTIC DRY BILLS

MEASURES FOR ENFORCING PROHIBITION IN SENATE.

One Forbids Drinking in Automobiles and Airplanes—Search Warrants Are Prohibited.

Washington, May 26.—Bills for enforcing war-time and constitutional prohibition were introduced by Senators Sheppard (Dem.) of Texas and Jones (Rep.) of Washington. Senator Sheppard's measure follows the lines of one that failed in the last congress, but Senator Jones' bill would apply to all "alcoholic liquor containing one-half of 1 per cent of alcohol by volume."

In the Sheppard bill liquor is defined as including "any distilled, malt, spirituous, vinous, fermented or alcoholic liquor and all alcoholic liquids and compounds whether medicated, proprietary, patented or not."

For the purpose of enforcing prohibition the secretary of the treasury would be authorized to appoint a prohibition commissioner and various assistants.

Persons who have stored quantities of liquor in their own homes in preparation for the long dry spell would be safe from molestation, as the act provides search warrants cannot be issued.

Cognizance of the airplane is taken by the bill, which prohibits transportation of intoxicants by that means as well as by common carriers.

Drinking of intoxicating liquors in all public conveyances and in automobiles would be prohibited under the act, which provides that in case where persons are injured or killed by drunken persons suits for damages can be brought against those who either sold or gave that person the liquor.

Penalties ranging from $500 to $1,000 fine with imprisonment of not less than 30 days nor more than 12 months would be prescribed and $3,500,000 would be appropriated for the enforcement of the act during the fiscal year 1920.

Measures for repeal of the war-time prohibition act in so far as it relates to wines and beer and for enforcement of that act as well as the constitutional amendment also were introduced in the senate.

The repeal bill was offered by Senator Phelan (Dem.) of California and is similar to the measure introduced in the house by Representative Gallivan (Dem.) of Massachusetts.

FOOD IN SLIGHT ADVANCE

Retail Prices Higher Than in March, but Lower Than Last December, Says a Statement.

Washington, May 24.—Retail prices for food in the United States during April were three per cent less than the high mark reached last December, according to a statement by the bureau of labor statistics. Prices during the month, however, showed an advance of four per cent over those in March.

New York Actors May Strike. New York, May 26.—An actors' strike, it was reported along Broadway, may follow the action of the Producing Managers' association in refusing to alter the present standard contract under which actors and actresses are employed. The actors want extra pay for playing special holiday matinees.

Too His Dividend. Berlin, May 27.—An employee who robbed the cash register of a big local firm of several thousand marks left a note in the cash drawer, on which he had written: "This is communism. The time has come to olvy up."

Indiana Kill U. S. Miner. Nogales, Ariz., May 27.—H. S. White, an American, is reported to have been killed by Yaqui Indians who attacked a truck train of the La Colorado mine while it was en route from San Xavier to Hermosillo, Sonora.

LONDON POLICE FIGHT BIG MOB

Former Soldiers and Sailors March on Commons and Royal Palace.

MEETING IN HYDE PARK

Similar Demonstrations Held Throughout the Country—Great Labor Triple Alliance Is Defied by the Government.

London, May 28.—Thousands of discharged soldiers and sailors out of employment, armed with stones and other missiles, marched toward the house of commons. They came into conflict with the police barring the approaches, however, and were scattered.

Later the procession was reformed and marched toward Buckingham palace, the royal residence, but the demonstration broke up before it reached the palace. There were no further disorders.

The demonstration followed a big meeting held during the afternoon in Hyde park, where the discharged soldiers and sailors demanded work and a minimum wage scale.

Similar demonstrations were held throughout the country during the day.

A great triple alliance of railway men, coal miners and transport workers—including a million and a half men—has prepared an ultimatum to the government and has been defied by Bonar Law. The unions demand immediate abolition of conscription, withdrawal of all troops from Russia, immediate lifting of the blockade against Germany, release of all conscientious objectors now in prison and raising exemption from the income tax to $1,200.

As leader of the house of commons, Bonar Law has declared that the request could not be granted and that the government would use all powers of the state if an attempt was made to forcibly challenge its authority. The executive committee of the triple alliance is meeting to consider what steps are to be taken and a call for a general strike within the next few weeks is not improbable.

That the government regards the situation as unusually serious is shown by the fact that Sir Robert Horne, minister of labor, has flown over to Paris to discuss it with Lloyd George.

The danger is made more real and immediate by the action of the national union of police, covering the whole of England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales.

A secret ballot, entirely without the knowledge of the government, has been taken, as a result of which the police all over the United Kingdom will go on strike on June 2, unless meanwhile the government grants the demands of the police union. The police demand recognition of their union, immediate increase in wages—which are now really shamefully low—and reinstatement of certain discharged constables.

The police ultimatum will be presented to the government on Friday. To make their threats more dangerous the police union has secured a promise of the executive committee of the great triple alliance, to support them in whatever steps they may decide to take.

Meanwhile the more radical and even revolutionary elements continue their agitation. At a large open-air meeting, held Sunday afternoon in Trafalgar Square in the heart of London, Tom Mann and Sylvia Parkhurst openly advocated immediate revolution.

YANKS LEAVING ARCHANGEL

Withdrawal of the American Troops From North Russia Actually Under Way.

Washington, May 28.—Withdrawal of the American forces from Archangel is actually under way, according to cable advices to the war department, which stated that members of the Three Hundred and Thirty-ninth Infantry were awaiting evacuation.

The cablegram also said that the return of individual soldiers as casuals, in accordance with a recent request of the department, would not expedite the discharge of such casuals since the units would arrive at home before these individuals.

Turkey's Debt Small. New York, May 28.—Turkey is one of the least debt-burdened countries in Europe and if one of the allied nations accepts a mandate for Constantinople its task will be financially an easy one, according to a statement issued by Prof. Andre Andreides, a Greek authority on international finance.

King of Moonshiners Slain. Birmingham, Ala., May 28.—Wiley Glover, self-styled "king of Jefferson county moonshiners" is dead and L. M. Felton, his alleged assistant, is in the county jail as a result of a pitched battle with deputy sheriffs, near Sayre.

Toledo Plants Reopen. Toledo, O., May 28.—Without the slightest disorder, the Overland, Auto-Lite and Rock Bearing plants, idle since May 6 on account of the strike of 20,000 employees, reopened Monday. About 6,000 men resumed their places.

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like in endless chain system, the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it. A prominent druggist says: "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments, corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcel Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.—Adv.

Life of Candle Flame. Laboratory experiments conducted of late have shown that a candle flame will become extinguished when the oxygen content of the atmosphere in which it is burning falls to about 45 per cent. Sulphur stops burning when all but 13.5 per cent of the oxygen in an enclosed space has been exhausted. The case of charcoal, however, is notable. Combustion continues until only 9 per cent of the oxygen remains.

No Such Word as Fall.

There is a difference between not succeeding and failing. The one is final; the other is only a temporary hindrance. If you persevere in spite of not succeeding, if you start again and act on the knowledge you have gained by your slip, it will not work you lasting injury. It is only when you surrender that you are really beaten. There is no such word as "fail" to one who will not give up.

Ancient Burial Chest.

A cist (sepulchral chest) of massive slabs, enclosing a cinerary urn, said to be pre-Christian, has been found near Douglas, Isle of Man.

PIGS OF ANY AGE THRIVE ON SPRING-SEEDED FORAGE CROPS AND PASTURES

Cereal Crops Furnish Good Pasture for Pigs in Early Spring.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

To make hog production most profitable, pasture should be provided whenever possible. The earlier in the year green feed can be supplied the better. Pigs of any age relish green feed, and its use reduces the cost of producing gains. In addition, it keeps the animals in good, thrifty condition.

Temporary pastures, such as the cereals, are best utilized in the early spring, and forage crops such as corn, soy beans, cowpeas and, in the South, velvet beans, furnish fall grazing. In the late spring and summer there is a season during which few temporary pastures are available, with the exception of rape. At that time permanent pastures, such as alfalfa, the clovers, bluegrass, Bermuda, and a number of others, have their greatest use. They do not furnish grazing as early in the spring as do the cereals previously mentioned, but they grow better during late spring and summer and afford an abundance of forage at a season when few other pastures are ready to graze.

Value of Permanent Pastures. Permanent pastures require a minimum of attention and care. They make the cheapest forage, as it is not necessary to plow and replant each year. If not too heavily grazed they may be carried over from one season to the next and increase in value each year. Only a little supplement need be fed to obtain a normal growth of the pigs.

One of the chief advantages of the permanent pasture is its long growing season. Growth continues from spring until fall, and the forage is palatable and nutritious at almost any time. Either a few hogs may be grazed during the whole season, or after the pasture has made considerable growth a large number may be pastured for a short time with practically equal results in the amount of pork produced to the acre. This shows that a permanent pasture is adapted to a variety of conditions. It takes the place of a reserve forage crop, being called upon to furnish grazing at any time of the year when other pastures fail or are exhausted.

Feed Grains With Pasture.

Although pasture reduces the amount of grain needed to bring pigs to a profitable weight and prepare them for market, it does not furnish a complete food. A sufficient quantity of roughage cannot be consumed and digested to supply all the nutrients required for rapid growth. The forage, especially from leguminous pastures, furnishes a cheap source of protein, supplies ash for bone making, adds bulk to the ration, acts as a mild laxative and tonic, and keeps the hog's system in condition to utilize profitably the concentrated feeds. Even with the present high prices of grain it pays better not to cut the grain ration more than half, feeding at the rate of two pounds daily for 100 pounds live weight to pigs on pasture instead of the usual four to five pounds when they are in a dry lot. Pigs that are fed grain while on pasture will gain a pound or more a day from weaning to a weight of 200 to 250 pounds, while those getting little or no grain will gain but one-half to three-quarters pound a day.

This will bring pigs to a marketable weight early in fall. A grain ration, then, reduces the time of feeding, the risk, interest on the investment, and produces a higher condition with a finer and more palatable meat and fat. Light, steady grain feeding on pasture gives better results than heavier feeding during a shorter finishing period.

PUMPKINS SUPERIOR AS FEED FOR STOCK

Have High Value for Succulence When Fed With Roughage.

Impression of Some Feeders That Seeds Have Tendency to Decrease Milk Flow Is Fallacy—Most Excellent for Pigs.

Pumpkins, coming as they do at a time of the year when grass begins to fall and before grain feeding is commenced, cannot be excelled as a feed for cattle. They have practically the same composition as different roots, and their feeding value for any kind of stock is practically the same.

Analysis shows that one ton of clover hay has as much feeding value as seven tons of pumpkins. When, however, pumpkins are fed in connection with clover hay or other like roughage they have on account of their succulence a greater feeding value than the analysis indicates. A succulent feed added to the ration always enables animals to digest and assimilate a little more dry matter.

Some feeders have the impression that seeds should be removed from pumpkins before feeding to dairy cows, as they believe the seeds have a tendency to decrease the flow of milk. There is no well-grounded foundation for this belief, as tests have proved.

When pumpkins are fed in excess the seeds act injuriously on the kidneys, but where fed in moderation no injurious results need be feared. One to two medium-sized pumpkins at a time twice a day is sufficient for each cow.

The greatest value obtained from the pumpkins fed to hogs in connection with corn comes from the corrective influence exercised on the digestion. They have a cooling influence on the system and keep the pigs' stomach and bowels in perfect condition. The animals are thus less subject to different ailments.

Since pumpkin seeds are exceedingly rich in protein too many should not be given to the hogs. Pumpkin seeds are a natural vermifuge and in limited quantities are valuable for hogs affected with worms.

For Planting Garden Peas.

Plant your garden peas in rows three feet wide and cover to a depth of five or six inches. The smooth varieties are best for early planting, as they are harder than the wrinkled type. Good varieties are Alaska, extra early, and first and best.

PASTURE CROPS FOR HOGS.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The best crops to plant in early spring for hog pasture are wheat, oats, rye, barley, rape, Canadian field peas, and vetch. Any of the cereals do well planted singly or in combination with rape, Canadian field peas, and vetch. In certain sections, where these crops will survive the winter, they can be sown the previous fall. There are a large number of valuable hog forages which may be grown in the South. They include corn, sorghum, winter grains, alfalfa, red and crimson clover, soy beans, velvet beans, cowpeas, peanuts, chufas, sweet potatoes, mangels, and rape.

LIVE STOCK NOTES

Kitchen sloop containing soap is not the best of hog feed.

Live stock, especially those of the dairy, do best on a variety of feed.

Exercise is as necessary as water and feed to the health of the stock.

Rape makes an excellent and cheap hog pasture. Why not give it a trial?

It's a mistake to sell the brood sow just because she happens to be grown up.

Fattening hogs on corn alone is like trying to build a house with boards only.

Well-cured corn fodder makes excellent roughage for a flock of breeding ewes.

Equal parts of oats, corn and bran make a splendid feed for sheep or lambs.

Always let the bull understand that you are his master—but be kind as well as firm.

Every effort should be made to protect ewe lambs from deleterious influences that retard their physical development.

The Holstein cow is a large animal bred along dairy lines. She is the best beef animal possessing the dairy type.

A Good Tire Year

You have 'doubtless noticed the growing preponderance of United States Tires.

Every one is asking for tires of known value and proved dependability.
